EXPLOSION THAT WRECKS THE SUPREME-COURT ROOM.

Priceless Manuscripts, Embedying Early Decisions, Destroyed-Court Now Sitting Outside Its Own Chamfor First Time Since 1814.

An explosion and fire at 5:13 Sunday afternoon wrecked the Supreme Court rooms and the rooms immediately adjoining it on the main floor of the United States Capitol, in Washington: The damage is extensive. The entire central eastern part of the great marble pile from the main floor to the subterranean basement practically is a mass of ruins. The force of the explosion was so heavy that the coping stones on the outer wali just east of the point where the explo-sion occurred were bulged out nearly two inches; windows in all that part of the building were blown out, and locked doors were forced from their hinges at least 150 feet from the scene. Fire followed the explosion so quickly as to seem practically simultaneous with it.

FOUNDATION SHAKEN. The explosion shook the immense struc ture to its foundations, and was heard several squares from the Capitol. It oc-curred in a small room tightly inclosed by heavy stone walls in the subterranean basement immediately below the main entrance to the old Capitol building.

In this room was a 500-light gas-meter, which was fed by a 4-inch main. Little which was led by a 4-inch main. Little gas is used in that part of the building but at the time of the explosion the gas had not been turned off at the meter. The meter itself was wrecked and the gas pouring from the main caught fire. The flames originating from the explosion darted up the shaft of the elevator which had been completely destroyed by the force of the explosion, and communicated with the record-room of the preme Court, the office of the marshal of the court, and the Supreme Court library Refore the flames could be subdued the priceless documents in the record-room had been almost totally destroyed and serious damage had been done in the marshal's-room and some minor rooms.

LIBRARY DAMAGED. The library of the Supreme Court, im-mediately beneath the Supreme-Courtm, was damaged badly by fire, smoke and water, practically destroying great dollection of law-reference books. The library contained about 30,000 volumes, and was used not only by the

These included all of the re-cords of the Supreme Court from 1792 to 1832. The room contains records of cases and opinions handed down by the fathers of the judiciary of the government. Apparently the documents in this room are either totally destroyed or so badly damaged by fire and water as to be use-less. Justice Harlam said that, while the loss of the records was irreparable, it was fortunate that the later records of the court, which were kept in the office of the Clerk on the main floor, ed food for the flames.

While many theories are offered as to the cause of the explosion, it seems beyond doubt to have been due to escaping gas. At 5:07 Leuter.ant Lelson, of the Capitol police, detected an odor of gas in the corridors adjoining the Supreme-Court-room. Not being able to locate it, be preceded to Statuary Hall-the old. proceeded to Statuary Hall-the old thinking the gas might be escaping from a burner there. While he was searching the explosion occurred. Only a few persons, principally officers of the Capitol police, were in the building at the time, but several of them had narrow escapes.

REGRETABLE LOSSES. Among the losses which will be regret-ted most sincerely are those of busts of Chief-Justice Marshall and other distinguished members of the Supreme Court, which were arranged on small ped which were arranged on small peocada about the Supreme-Court chamber. In the smoke and ruin which followed the explosion these yaluable works of art were either badly damaged or wholly destroyed, and with their destruction the country has suffered an irreparable loss.

The Capitol Building has been damaged number of times before by fire, but it is believed that Sunday night's fire will prove to be the most disastrous in the history of the building. On two occasions prior to this fires have been started by explosions of gas.

explosions of gas.

Seventeen years ago a large amount of damage was done to the same part of the building by an explosion of this kind, and in 1876 there was an explosion of gas that killed one man and came near killing another. DAMAGE LESS THAN FIRST THOUGHT.

WASHINGTON, November 7.—Assistant-Architect-of-the-Capitol Wood, after an inspection of the wrecked part of the Capitol, expressed the opinion jate this evening that the damage to the building could be repaired for $20,000.

"It is by no means so serious as I first thought it was," said Mr. Wood. "I find that the foundations of the buildings were not damaged in the least, and that the only injury done to the structure by the explosion was that to the arched floors. These were struck from beneath, and, affording the least resistance, gave way so readily that the foundation walls were not injured in any re-

Mr. Wood believes that the explosion was caused by gas, but says he has not yet been able, on account of the debris, to make a sufficiently critical examination to place the exact spot at which the ignition occurred. Other architects who have inspected the scene of the catas-trophe also attribute it to an explosion of gas, but, like Mr. Wood, decline to go into details in their theories. Some ex-press the opinion that a broken main and burning jet are responsible for the occurrence.

REMOVING THE RUBBISH. The work of removing the rubbish caused by the explosion proceeded rapidly all day, seventy-five or one hundred men being employed for this purpose. As soon as the refuse is sufficiently cleared out the work of repairing the damage will begin.

Mr. Wood thinks that the Supreme Court-room will be ready for occupancy within two weeks. Here, as elsewhere, the damage was less than was thought and the opinion is expressed that nothing more than repainting the walls and put ting in new doors, new skylights, and new upholstery will be necessary to ren-der the chamber fit for service. Fire did der the chamber at for service. Fire did very little darnage to this room, but the concussion did some, and the smoke and water more. The ceiling in this part of the building, and some of the partitions, are of wood, and there is no doubt that very serious damage would have resulted if the fire had once gotten headway here. As it adjoins the dome there has been some speculation as to what effect it would have had upon that struc-

NO VALUABLE BOOKS INJURED. None of the very valuable books in the law library were injured. The only damage that cannot be made good was done in the file-room of the Supreme Co in the basement, where were stored all the official records and the original the official records and the original copies of opinions from the foundation of the government. All these opinions have been printed, but the original manuscripts were highly valued. This room was almost over the scene of the explosion, and it was one of the first compartments of the Capitol to be attacked. The decumpants here were stored tacked. The documents here were stored away in an orderly manner in wooden cases, and none of them had any other protection except the records of the court from 1792 to 1832, which were encased in

The flames appear to have completely enveloped this room, but they were only sufficiently intense to badly char all the wood-work and many of the documents. EARLY MSS. DESTROYED.

Comparatively few of the papers were absolutely destroyed, but those which suffered this fate were among the most valuable in the room. They included the original opinions of the court in the early days of the republic, and among them were many manuscripts prepared in the handwriting of the jurists of the days of Washington, Jefferson, and Adams. There were in the list many Adams. There were in the list many opinions in manuscript written by Marshall, Story, Samuel Chase, Bushrod Washington, and others of the justices of the period between 1790 and 1830, and, therefore, prized as relics of the early days of the court. They were also occasionally referred to to settle disputed points concerning words or punctuation marks. These papers were stored under the arch of the room, and seem to have been completely consumed. been completely consumed.

RECORDS IN GOOD CONDITION. On the other hand, the official records of the court's proceedings, covering the same period, appear to have been preserved, and probably in good condition.

These were encased in tin boxes, and these in turn placed within wooden cases. Many of the more modern documents, including letters and opinions of recent date, were also so badly burned that it will be impossible to restore them, but none of these appear to have suffered such complete demolition as befel the early opinions. No documents affecting the opinions. No documents affecting the present docket of the court were injured. The fire at one time threatened to invade the Senate document-room, the first thin four or five feet of it. MAIN WALL INTACT.

A report was current during the morn ing that the west central wall of the Capitol was cracked as a result of the explosion. Architect Wood made a careexamination, and located the which had aroused suspicion. It proved, however, to be in the outer, or veneor wall, and not in the 6-foot foundation wall on the west side. This main wall has stood over one hundred years, and is still in fairly good condition. When additions were made, a veneer wall, about 10 inches thick, was added outside. The explosion last night blew out a heavy stone door-frame in the outer wall, and this in turn loosened several stones in the veneer wall. Mr. Wood satisfied himself that the main wall had not been COURT SITS IN COMMITTEE-ROOM

The Supreme Court sat to-day in the room of the Senate Committee on the District of Columbia. The room is quite a commodious office-room, well furnished with tables, chairs, desks, and other office furniture, so that little difficulty was encountered in transforming it into a suitable place for the court. The long centre-table used by the committee when in session was pushed to the rear of the room, leaving only such space behind it as is judges. The Clerk and the Marshal occupied improvised desks at either end of the table, and the chairs for the attorneys were placed in front of the place of the attorneys were placed in front of the attorneys were placed in front of the place of the attorneys were placed in the a neys were placed in front of the court.

THE COURT ONE-SIDED. Justices Gray and McKenna, who usually occupy seats to the left of the Chief Justice, were absent, thus giving the court a somewhat one-sided appearance. No written opinions were rendered, but this was not due to the fire. Arguments before the court occupied most of the day.

INDICTMENT AGAINST HOBSON.

He Must Answer for Assaulting Mr.

Fisher-Indicted for Conspiracy. The indictment of George L. Hobson for his assault upon George E. Fisher, was almost a foregone conclusion. The grand jury, sitting in the Hustings Court yesterday, heard the witnesses for the prosecution, and returned a true bill.

The indictment is drawn in the usual form, as follows: "On the 17th day of October, and within the jurisdiction of the Hustings Court of the city of Richmond, G. I. Hobson, did, in and upon one George E. Fisher, unlawfully, felonious-ly, and maliciously, make an assault, and with his hands and fists, then and there, unlawfully, feloniously, and maliciously, unlawfully, feloniously, and maliciously uniawfully, feloniously, and maliciously, did beat, bruise, cut, wound, and break the nose of the said George E. Fisher, with intent to maim, disfigure, disable, and kill him."

It is considered by some people that it will be extremely difficult to get a jury of Richmond men to try the case. Under the indictment the punishment may range from one day in jail to ten years in the penitentiary, or the accused may be found guilty of assault and battery only, and a fine imposed.

INDICTED FOR CONSPIRACY. Jacob Cohen, Michael Rose, and Ben-jamin Shoemaker were indicted for conspiracy. It is charged that they accused one Joseph Weinstein of attempting to kill his mother, Dora Weinstein, in further charged that the prisoners ac-cused Weinstein of applying to an insurance company for a policy on the life of his mother, while presenting his wife, Hannah Weinstein, to be examined in her place.

The plaintiff alleges that these charges have ruined his business, and under the laws of Virginia they constitute a crim: ial offence. Other true bills returned were against Richard Johnson, Charles H. Bonaparte and Willie Hayes, charged with house-breaking; John Daniel and William Smith, malicious wounding, and C. L. Bowser, assault. JUDGMENTS RENDERED. In the Circuit Court the following judg-ments were rendered in favor of W. D.

lardwell, receiver, against the following parties: George A. Benedict, $80; Miss F. C. Briggs, $80; Miss Elia W. Briggs, $50 Mrs, Mary V. Love, $80; Mrs. Mary L. Masurier, $120; Patrick McDonough, $60
